	2018	Eco Restaurant

No 50 Main Street Gorey is a fine building towards the top of Main Street Gorey.

Now currently home to the Eco restaurant which has operated successfully here for many years.

In a former life it was the Bank of Ireland in the latter part of the 19th century and early 20th century.

The current Bank of Ireland is now situated in the middle of Main Street in a newer more modern building.

The building was itself remodelled around the year 1879. The architect to Bank of Ireland was a man called Sandham Symes who worked from 1854 to 1879.

It would be similar to other bank buildings such as that found in Thurles County Tipperary in 1866.

It is an attached four bay two storey double pile bank with a hipped roof behind the parapet.

It is a good quality building with a silver-grey granite to the front elevation and sash windows, moulded plasterwork inside. The building was further renovated in the years 2003 to 2004.

The bank manager would have occupied the upper level of the property as was customary at the time during the early years of the bank's operation in the census of 1901 it was Edward Henry McCormick with his wife Fru and child Amy. By the 1911 census there was a different bank manager running the bank he was Edwin Lamphier.
