The Doyle Family

Laurence Doyle is in the property from 1853 onwards. Laurence Doyle died on the 11th March 1874 aged 52; and is buried in St. Michael's Cemetery; Gorey. These Doyle's hail from Killowen and would have been originally from Craanford.

Laurence Doyle's daughter Mary Doyle married James Redmond on the 12th September 1878 in St. Michael's Chapel, Gorey.

This is how the Redmond's came to be involved in the business on main street.

The Redmond Family – Butchers on 92 Main Street Gorey

There are many Redmond Families in Gorey with similar trades and can be easily confused when doing family research.

James & Mary Redmond (nee Doyle of Killowen) had four children;

Agnes (died 29.05.1923),

Ellen (died 02.04.1953),

James (died 06.04.1957)

Patrick (died 28.06.1914 – see story below). In 1901 the family are listed as follows:

This is the family in the 1911 census:

James Redmond was a butcher and cattle dealer who ran a successful business at No 92 Main Street Gorey for many years.

The house at this time as can be seen from the photograph below was both the business and home for the family.

James Redmond's youngest son -Patrick Redmond died aged 26 years on Sunday 28th June 1914. He had been ailing for some-time.

During the funeral; as the cortege passed the deceased's late residence his home place at 92 Main Street Gorey, his mother who was very much attached to him, catching sight of the coffin collapsed; overcome by grief and was removed to bed and the doctor and priest was called for.

She died at 6.30 that evening on 30th June, not with-standing skilful medical treatment.

Owing to the illness of her dear son which had been of long duration, she had not been in robust health latterly.

The occurrence has cast a gloom over the whole town where the Redmond Family are held in the highest regard.

James Redmond (father of the family) died 10th December 1914.
