In the census of 1911; the son John Kirwan is recorded with his gaelic name;

he is living here with a servant who is probably helping out in the bakery.

John subsequently became involved in the 1916 Easter Rising and was jailed in Frognoch.

He was well known in the town for his republican leaning.

The Hogan Family

The Hogan's arrived in the property in 1916; having originally lived in Wexford Street, Gorey.

They were a family of tailors and dressmakers.

The family were talented musicians and Irish dancers.

Apparently each person was trained in a particular role of the tailoring process; which became a problem as the family died out over time.

Jack Hogan lived in the property and was the last resident when he passed away in the 1980's.

The property was converted to a shop. In 2018 it houses a ladies fashion house known as "Contra".
